NETWORK BRIEF

LET'S PUSH

CATERING!

From the Founder

Team,

Over the past few months, we have seen stronger alignment across the network, greater consistency in execution, and continued momentum across the business. That progress is worth recognizing, and it only happens when we move together.

As we look ahead to the months leading into the holiday season, now is the time to keep building. Strengthen local partnerships, stay consistent, and unnecessary waste – all while supporting operational excellence.

Sincerely,
Trusha Makadia

Operational Update

PRODUCT FRESHNESS & QUALITY STANDARDS

Make Line, Hero Items, Receiving Practices, Reducing Waste, Elevating Guest Experience

Why this matters: Freshness is one of the strongest drivers of repeat visits and guest trust. More often concerns were product variety issues than Guac Grill's quality promise. Smaller batch production protects freshness, maintains appearance, and reduces unnecessary waste – all while supporting operational excellence.

1. Guacamole Excellence

- Prepare guacamole in single batches.
- Label and store everything by fresh/use-by date and discard promptly.
- Follow FIFO (First In, First Out) — older product must be used before fresh product.
- Never place fresh batch on top of existing product.
- Replace pans as needed to maintain presentation and freshness.

2. Vegetable Preparation Standards

Prep vegetables in smaller quantities throughout the day.

- Only prepare what is needed to support anticipated guest demand during the following fourteen (14) hours and components.
- Rotate product using FIFO to ensure older product is used first.
- Store vegetables in clean, sanitized, properly labeled containers.
- Never mix fresh product with existing product unless FIFO procedures are followed.
- Replenish in small batches as needed.
- Discard any vegetables that no longer meet freshness, quality, or food safety standards.

3. Freshness Reminder

Vegetables are one of the first ingredients guests see. Preparing smaller batches more frequently keeps our bowls looking fresh, tasting great, and reinforcing the quality guests expect from Guac Grill. Each time.

5. Key Expectations

- Prioritize freshness over volume production.
- Maintain clean and sanitized containers, utensils, and storage areas.
- Follow FIFO procedures consistently.
- Escalate product quality concerns to management immediately.

Remember: Guests notice freshness. Smaller batches prepared more often deliver a superior guest experience.

OUR COMMITMENT TO EXCELLENCE

By embracing the Make Line, Hero Often standard, we protect product quality, reduce waste, and strengthen our brand promise. Freshness is not just a procedure, it's a daily discipline that sets our brand apart from others.
